Hunter Valley

Blue Mountains, Hunter Valley and Port Stephens

The Blue Mountains are a sandstone plateau and World Heritage Area which forms a wilderness of spectacular blue-hazed beauty.

Hunter Valley on the other hand is the hub for wineries in New South Wales. You will find about 70 boutique vineyards growing some of the region's best quality fruit; many of these produce trophy-winning wines.

On the exact opposite of the spectrum is Port Stephens with its 26 sandy golden beaches, a bay that's two and half times the size of Sydney Harbour and many beautiful inlets.

DAY 1 • Sydney to the Blue Mountains – 125km • Take time to stop in the village of Leura which is well known for its art galleries all in Heritage colours and as home to the largest model railway museums in Australia. Take a Blue Mountains Trolley Tour and discover Blue Mountains' attractions. Trolleys meet trains from Sydney at Katoomba Station with direct travel to Echo Point and The Sisters. Travel to the Scenic Railway and Skyway, Leura Village, Everglades Gardens and many other locations.

Accommodation: Alpine Motor Inn, Katoomba

DAY 2 • After a leisurely breakfast take the scenic less traveled route by traveling north through Blackheath and Mount Victoria before continuing into the wine country of the Hunter Valley. With more than 120 wineries, the Hunter Valley produces some terrific wines, loved at home and abroad, including the crisp Hunter Semillon and the ripe Hunter Shiraz. Complement the wine with superb cuisine and stylish boutique accommodation. Wine and food buffs can join a winery tour to sample some of the region's gourmet delights. Others may prefer to indulge in some serious pampering at a day spa or teeing off from one of the region's championship golf courses.

Accommodation: The Hunter Valley Resort

DAY 3 • It is just a short 70 mile drive to the Port Stephens which is a series of idyllic seaside villages scattered along a crystal clear waterway and the Pacific Ocean – the area is known as "Blue Water Paradise". Port Stephens is commonly referred to as the "Dolphin Capital of Australia" as it is home to a pod of 160 bottlenose dolphins. You are booked on a Dolphin Watch Cruise this afternoon which departs from Nelson Bay.

Accommodation: All Seasons Salamander Shores Port Stephens
